WOMANSENSE

Princess Margaret Of Britain... By Betty Spencer Shew

PRINCESS Margaret, younger daughter of King George VI, who became nineteen on August 21, has had a deal with the familiar problem of the "younger sister." Looking back upon their adolescence, many girls will know something of that problem, will recognize that, whether consciously or otherwise, they have had to assert their own personalities to escape being overshadowed. In Princess Margaret's case this situation was aggravated by the circumstance that the "elder sister" was also the Heiress Presumptive to the British throne. A less vital personality might have been in some danger of being lost in the shadows cast by the bright lights of world publicity focussed upon Princess Elizabeth.

No "Carbon Copy"

But as a writer in an American magazine said recently, "Princess Margaret is not now and never has been a carbon copy of her sister"—which is only a crisp, trans-Atlantic way of saying that she is very much a person on her own in many ways, certainly in point of character, strikingly like Princess Elizabeth, in others, quite unlike.

Princess Margaret is only nineteen years old but her swift development during the past few years, and particularly since her sister's marriage, has already filled in the outline of her adult personality. Even the most casual contact with her is liable to leave behind the impression of a lively, volatile disposition, to which is allied an alert and inquiring mind. A better acquaintance would mark the sensitiveness of her response to the arts, especially music. She is an accomplished pianist. Her pronounced artistic tastes are veiled in her fondness for the opera and the ballet, in her interest in pictures and in her very real love of the theatre—of all the Royal Family only her grandmother, Queen Mary, is a more diligent playgoer. They are, perhaps, reflected too, in such lesser matters as glimpse of a European country, and it quickened her desire to see more of that continent. She has now had the immensely rewarding experience of travelling in Italy and France, the countries which, above all others, were most likely to appeal to her artistic sensibilities and love of beauty.

Here is precisely the sort of mind to profit most from the broadening influence of travel, a fact which quickly became apparent to me during the Royal visit to the Union of South Africa in 1947. For a girl not yet 17 that most memorable tour was a really educative experience, giving the most of which I have spoken, and which is so characteristic of Princess Margaret. It has

A Man With Feminine Hobbies

HAVERHILL, Mass.—In the daytime, Arthur M. Clay is engineer of a diesel locomotive on the Boston & Maine Railroad.

But at night Clay relaxes with his needle work, among his other hobbies are carpentry, masonry, electrical work and plumbing.

Adept either with a hand needle or sewing machine, Clay turns out some pretty tricky bed quilts, children's overalls, aprons and pillows. He even sews leather goods such as wallets and holders for railroad men's rule books and time cards.

In two years Clay said he made 19 bed quilts as well as many cloth vests and black sleeve protectors. His co-workers say there is fast as Clay gets them made.

In his spare time, when he doesn't feel like sewing, Clay busies himself in the kitchen whipping up pies and cakes.—United Press.

her love of flowers. (It was not an accident that when she went to Holland last year to represent King George VI and Queen Elizabeth at the inauguration of Queen Juliana, one of the first things she asked to see was the famous Aalsmeer, the great flower market of Amsterdam.)

Artistic Dress-sense

I am not sure that the undoubted "dress sense" she possesses is not, in its own way, an equally true expression of these same artistic inclinations. In matters of fashion the Princess already shows an enterprising taste—she took to the "New Look" at once—and has a distinct flair for choosing the styles and colours most becoming to her. She was one of the first in Britain to adopt the attractive Parisian way of wearing pearls "choker" fashion, and she remains faithful to this mode with its nostalgic suggestion of the expansive times of King Edward VII. One of her favourite pieces of jewellery is a five-stranded pearl choker with a large blue enamel and diamond fastening in front.

Travel In Italy And France

Princess Margaret's visit to the Netherlands was her first quite recently been still further stimulated by series of visits to such places as Britain's House of Commons, to Scotland Yard, the famous metropolitan police headquarters on the Thames Embankment, a London court for juvenile delinquents, and the Central Criminal Court, better known in England as the "Old Bailey"—all of them visits which brought her into contact with a workaday world that princesses living in a more formal age were not expected to know anything about!

Short Hair Causes Wig Panic

By PATRICIA CLARY

HOLLYWOOD. THERE rage for short haircuts. This caught Hollywood with a serious shortage of wigs. Even the extras in current pictures have to be outfitted with flowing locks.

"We can't have a Turkish harem scene," coiffure custodian Bud Westmore pointed out, "with all the wives wearing 1949 short hair cuts."

Westmore has a whole room at Universal-International filled with rows of hair falls. He started the collection, now numbering more than 400, when it appeared that short hair was there for a while.

"It's difficult for a movie studio to follow a hair trend," he said. "The life span of a hair fashion is hard to judge. It's too much of a gamble to put it on film."

If Ann Blyth wore her own short hair in her current movie, "Free for All," by the time the picture came out the fashion might have changed to long.

Sees End In Sight

"I do think the end of short hair is in sight," Westmore added. "We've had it 18 months. That's long enough."

The hair department's big difficulty is not in fixing long wigs for the stars but outfitting the many feminine extras in two big Technicolor extravaganzas, "Babes" and "The Kid from Texas."

"I had to use 175 hair falls to fix up the extras on 'Babes' alone," Westmore said.

The same thing happened on the other picture. All the women had to be supplied with fake pompadour and buns so they'd look as though they belonged back in 1870.

Westmore doesn't worry about how the men are wearing their hair these days.

"You can find men in Hollywood with every kind of hair," he said. "And there's enough of them around so you can pick your extras according to the length of their hair."

A Safe Way To Reduce

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THERE is no royal road to reducing. With but few exceptions, the only way to lose weight satisfactorily is to cut down on the amount of food eaten.

I want to emphasize this because so many people seem to think that doctors should supply a magic formula to take the effort out of reducing and make it possible to lose unwanted pounds while continuing to satisfy a hearty appetite.

As a matter of fact, the search for drugs to control appetite has been constant, but only a few have been discovered which are at once both safe and effective. Even these must be used under the direction of a physician.

Depressing the Appetite

One of the most satisfactory is known as amphetamine. In the form of dextro-amphetamine it is especially effective in depressing the appetite without producing the dryness of the mouth, restlessness, and sleeplessness often brought on by other forms of this drug.

But good as it is, recent studies demonstrate that use of dextro-amphetamine alone will achieve little in the way of weight reduction unless, at the same time, the amount of food taken is controlled.

A number of overly fat men and women were selected to take part in this investigation. Twenty to thirty minutes before meals they were given dextro-amphetamine in small but gradually increasing doses. The patients were allowed to eat what they pleased and there was no limitation of fluids. Of course, the drug interfered with the patients' appetite so that they did not eat as much as usual. Nevertheless, after eight weeks of treatment, it was found that about half the patients had lost an average of about a pound a week. After twelve weeks, only about one out of four continued to lose that much weight. Subsequently, the loss in weight occurred even more slowly and, at the end of eight months, only one patient was able to keep up this average loss of a pound a week.

Weight Reduction

What better proof could be had that the first and most important step in weight reduction is a carefully regulated diet? In many cases, one containing about 1,000 calories or heat units daily will do the work, but it must be planned so as to include all necessary vitamins, minerals, and proteins, and used until the weight reaches a normal level.

With such a diet as this and a drug used under the direction of a physician to control the appetite, the average overweight individual should have little difficulty in getting back to a normal weight. At the same time he will greatly improve his health because excessive fat puts such a strain on the heart and other important organs that it may actually shorten life.

Dainty Dress For Dancing

By VERA WINSTON

FRESH and dainty organdy with a crinkled surface is the material for this pretty summer evening dress. The lavender background is printed in light green and blue field flowers to make a nice colour scheme. Looped drapery is manipulated to build the off-shoulder neckline. The bodice is moulded and the skirt is gathered in front and gored in back.

If Your Hair Is Unmanageable

Designed by a famous New York hairdresser, this attractive coiffure is a good choice for summer. It stresses a soft, flattering line.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN a woman says that she can't do a thing with her hair she means just that. It won't let her. It drives her to a state of distraction. It snarls at her if she touches it with comb and brush. What has happened? The so-called glory crown is protesting against neglect or harsh treatment. Or it resists a new arrangement and will not stay put.

For the last five years, hair has been undergoing a growing-up experience. The flowing shoulder-length bob gave it freedom, and it loved it. Then coiffure stylists designed the lowering effect that crowned many women's heads. This sudden change and turn-about sent feminine wool into a state of tantrums and the only way to attain the rear upswing was by using lacquer. So sooner had one trained one's silky threads to ascend at the back and stay there than word went out that the dear lamb must be sheared again.

Now we have with us the short coiffures and the long ones, as many of the younger women are still hanging onto their flowing manes. Hair can be arranged with sleek formality or curled within an inch of its life.

When you get a permanent do not fancy that you have done well by your hair and that's all that is expected of you. Brush it every night. Have the right kind of brush which should be narrow with bristles set in groups so that it can be washed easily. Do not get the idea into your head that half a dozen sweeps are enough. Part your hair at various places. Brush it the way it "doesn't go" when it is dressed. That is one means of ventilating your silky mopp.

Let's Eat

Include Vitamin E In Your Daily Meals

"CHEATING" you say. "How could I cheat my family? I don't have money dealings with them. And I don't shortcut on anything."

Are you sure? How about the vitamins, those precious mysterious life-promoting activators in food. There's scarcely a household where vitamins are not wasted and the family "cheated" out of essentials to good health.

Every time vegetables are allowed to wither before cooking, vitamin potency is vitiated. Whenever they are overcooked vitamins lose vitality. Wherever the cooking water is poured off and not used vitamins are lost.

Cooking Meat

When meats are cooked at too high a temperature vitamins are affected.

And whenever white flour is used, the family is "cheated" out of the corresponding vitamin-rich quantity of the wheat germ removed during its manufacture.

But we can't bake well with whole wheat flour, I can hear you say.

It is true that the colour and flavour of white flour cannot be duplicated, but delicious cakes, pies and breads can be made with whole wheat. But since most homemakers are unwilling to do this, millers supply white flour and the "germ" of wheat that golden yellow heart, which is the vital part of the grain is removed. Most of it is used in animal feed.

But there's a way you can stop cheating your family of necessary vitamins. Keep a tin of wheat germ in the kitchen, and serve it regularly to each person. It is nature's most abundant source of vitamin E, and of vitamin B, which is composed of more than 12 ingredients.

We have heard much about vitamin B, but comparatively little about vitamin E, which is deficient in most diets. To be a bit technical it is the most active of all the vitamins, a balance wheel of the oil soluble vitamins, it affects phosphorus metabolism, the utilisation of oxygen by the body, and retards the aging of the whole organism.

Almost everybody needs more vitamin E. Tracking down this elusive wheat germ, I met a charming young woman, Sophie Gordon, a biochemist, who has made a deep study of wheat germ and practical ways to use it. She came to see me and she told me how she became convinced that wheat germ is an essential food.

Proved Beneficial

"I was in charge of the laboratory of Dr. Walter Timme, the gland specialist," she said. "He always told his patients to take wheat germ. And it proved very beneficial. I decided that I'd like to make wheat germ available generally all over the country to more people could benefit from it. Finally I found a small wheat germ business and took it over. The next problem was to develop wheat germ that could keep fresh without becoming rancid. When that had been accomplished I had to think of ways to use it in everyday diets."

"And what did you find out?" I asked.

"I found there are no end of ways to use it. Mix a tablespoonful for each person with any ready cereal, or stir it into cooked cereal. Or add it to fruit drinks, or milk shakes. Or noodles, creamed cauliflower or asparagus, or stewed tomatoes. Or use it with crumbs in making brown bread, or dust over salads. Wheat germ can be used whenever you would use very finely chopped nuts. It actually makes the food more delicious."

"How about cookies, rolls, or gingerbread?" I asked.

"Just use 1/2 to 3/4 wheat germ in place of that amount of flour," said Sophie, "but cut down the shortening a little because wheat germ is rich in natural oils."

As a vitamin rich food supplement, wheat germ has received the approval of the American Medical Association.

Sitting on the Fence....by

NATHANIEL GUBBINS

At a further sitting of the sub-commission on the Press Nathaniel Gubbins gave more evidence of his personal experiences as a reporter.

THE CHAIRMAN: You have informed us that you were once a general reporter. What is a general reporter?

GUBBINS: A reporter who does not specialise in anything and is always chosen to report the fire in the East India Dock-road at midnight.

CHAIRMAN: What do you mean by "the" fire? Was it a regular occurrence?

Gubbins said at the time there were so many fires in the East India Dock-road at midnight that a belief existed in Fleet-street that somebody was starting them on purpose.

CHAIRMAN: What purpose?

GUBBINS: To annoy reporters who wanted to go home.

CHAIRMAN: Why should somebody start a fire every night to annoy reporters?

GUBBINS: Reporters are always unpopular except among people who hope for favourable publicity.

A Member of the Commission: Did you find the person who started the fires?

GUBBINS: No.

CHAIRMAN: Apart from reporting fires, what were the other duties of a general reporter?

Gubbins said so far as he was concerned it might have been boarding a ship from a pilot's boat in mid-Channel to get the first interview with a visiting film star, waiting for a city to be blown up by the splitting of the atom, trying to ask Bernard Shaw if he preferred the appearance of women with or without make-up, telephoning actresses to get details of their slimming diets, reporting the Royal Garden Party in shabby tweeds, or asking fish porters working in Billingsgate refrigerators during a heat wave how they like the coolest job in Britain.

CHAIRMAN: Were you employed by The London Express Newspapers at the time?

GUBBINS: No.

A Member of the Commission: What did the fish porters reply to your question?

Gubbins wrote the answer on a slip of paper and handed it to the chairman.

CHAIRMAN (flushing): Are you trying to insult the chair?

Gubbins explained he had written down the fish porters' reply because he did not want to shock the commission.

CHAIRMAN: I see. I presume the newspaper did not print this obscenity?

GUBBINS: No.

CHAIRMAN: What did it print?

GUBBINS: Partly because of a slight physical resemblance,

GUBBINS: That the man doing the coolest job was 33 years old, 5ft. 10ins. tall, was married and living at Broom with his wife, aged 28, and two little daughters, Daisy and Minnie, aged 7½ and 5½ respectively.

CHAIRMAN: What had that to do with it?

GUBBINS: Nothing.

Party

CHAIRMAN: Why were you sent to a Royal Garden Party in shabby tweeds?

GUBBINS: Because I was wearing shabby tweeds.

CHAIRMAN: Why didn't you change into a morning coat and top hat?

GUBBINS: Partly because I wasn't given enough time and partly because I didn't own a morning coat and top hat.

CHAIRMAN: Weren't you very conspicuous?

GUBBINS: Very.

CHAIRMAN: Did anybody speak to you?

GUBBINS: A man in a top hat and morning coat asked me to get him a chair.

CHAIRMAN: What did you say?

GUBBINS: I told him I wasn't in charge of the chairs. I said I was looking after the ducks.

Volcano

CHAIRMAN: Can you think of any other occasion when you were improperly dressed for an assignment?

Gubbins said that in the 1920's he flew to Sicily in semi-evening dress to describe the eruption of Mount Etna from the air. He could not say if semi-evening dress was the correct wear for observing volcanic eruptions.

CHAIRMAN: Why did you go in semi-evening dress?

GUBBINS: Because I was covering an assignment in evening dress an hour or two before the aircraft took off for Sicily.

CHAIRMAN: What exactly do you mean by semi-evening dress?

GUBBINS: As I had no time to remove the evening shirt I changed the bow tie for a knotted tie and slipped on a lounge suit.

A Member of the Commission: What did the Sicilians think of an Englishman dressed like that?

GUBBINS: When I landed at Catania they mistook me for Mussolini.

CHAIRMAN: Why?

GUBBINS: Partly because of a slight physical resemblance,

you wait for Sheffield to blow up?

GUBBINS: Two weeks.

CHAIRMAN: What did you write about?

GUBBINS: Doomed Sheffield cowering under the threat of total destruction coming nearer day by day.

CHAIRMAN: Didn't these reports cause alarm and despondency?

GUBBINS: Nobody seemed to take any notice except that two women tried to jump out of a window.

CHAIRMAN: Why?

GUBBINS: I thought at first they were my only readers in Sheffield but I learned afterwards that their house was on fire.

Egg

A MEMBER of the Commission: Were you one of those reporters who tried an egg on the pavement during a heat wave?

Gubbins said he believed he was the pioneer of that kind of journalism.

A Member of the Commission: What happened?

GUBBINS: A large policeman took my name and address for obstruction and trod on the egg.

Remark: That the Ministry of Food would get you ten years' hard labour for the same offence now, the Chairman then adjourned for lunch.

C. V. R. Thompson Reports:

The American Scene

NEW YORK.

THREE mild-mannered, but stubborn, spinsters, have threatened America with at least a year of legal arguing, to decide whether anyone in a free country can be made to swear he is not a Communist.

The three—Dr Miriam Bradley, Doris Shaffer, and Elizabeth Haas—are not Communists.

They passed with top marks the loyalty test which the State of Maryland insists they must take to keep their Government jobs.

But they are Quakers. Their religion, they say, makes them conscientious objectors to the new law designed to keep Maryland Communist-proof.

Their defiance will not cost them their jobs—yet.

First, Maryland will ask the courts to declare the law constitutional. And the three spinsters and their Quaker friends will ask the courts to do just the opposite.

Their argument as explained by spokeswoman Bradley: "We object to a law which is totalitarian itself, as means of fighting totalitarianism."

"And besides, I believe that God has an interest in every human being, and any act which suppresses persons who have their own thoughts is contrary to God."

BACHELORDOM and one of the best legal jobs in the country did not save the late Justice Frank Murphy any money. In his will, filed in Washington, he left only £520. And £400 of that was owed a local hotel.

SIGNS OF RELIEF came recently from Johns Hopkins, America's top hospital, because Cary Grant had left after ten days' treatment for jaundice. The doctors were swamped with people making appointments for jaundice check-up, and then dashing off to Cary Grant's room, where they chanted, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Tougher germs won't cheat these drugs

THE white-smocked woman sitting at the laboratory bench in Hammersmith Hospital, W. 12, smiled as she reached for the last of the jelly-filled glass dishes in which colonies of blood-poison germs were growing.

It was the end of a 1,000-stage experiment which had yielded the most reassuring news doctors and their patients could hear—that the belief that penicillin is steadily losing its curative power is almost certainly wrong.

Two years ago this same woman, DR. MARY BARBER, reported research which seemed to confirm the belief. She proved that germs which had once wilted when attacked by penicillin were being replaced by tougher types, completely resistant to it.

Worse still, these resistant germs set free a ferment which destroyed penicillin. So a few of them, lurking in a patient's bloodstream could protect a host of otherwise susceptible germs.

It looked more than likely that within a few years this unexpected counter-attack would intensify sufficiently to rob practising doctors of all confidence in "wonder drugs."

But these new experiments provide the happier proof that after a few generations resistant germs just as readily revert to weaker types 100 per cent susceptible to penicillin.

Dr Barber collected from hospital patients 32 different races of germs which thrived on the drug. Within a year 17 gave rise to colonies which were rapidly killed by it.

THE ENGINE BLOCK is maintained at a temperature far above the level at which dew forms in the cylinders. In the ordinary car engine this dew—formed from burned petrol—corrodes the cylinders and causes further wear by diluting the oil.

BY BOILING the water in a closed system with a device for condensing the steam, the whole engine remains at a steady temperature—212 degrees Fahrenheit—regardless of load. In normal car engines, fluctuating temperatures alternately expand and contract the cylinders, fatiguing the metal and causing extra piston wear.

Strongest support for these claims is the fact that a lorry engine fitted with this "vapour phase" cooling, is still delivering 10 miles to the gallon after clocking 165,000 miles.

Boil To Cool

AN EXPERIMENTAL car-cooling system, in which the water is continually allowed to boil, is getting loud praise from US engineers. They claim that it increases engine efficiency, giving more miles to the gallon and using much less oil for two main reasons—

1 THE ENGINE BLOCK is maintained at a temperature far above the level at which dew forms in the cylinders. In the ordinary car engine this dew—formed from burned petrol—corrodes the cylinders and causes further wear by diluting the oil.

2 BY BOILING the water in a closed system with a device for condensing the steam, the whole engine remains at a steady temperature—212 degrees Fahrenheit—regardless of load. In normal car engines, fluctuating temperatures alternately expand and contract the cylinders, fatiguing the metal and causing extra piston wear.

Strongest support for these claims is the fact that a lorry engine fitted with this "vapour phase" cooling, is still delivering 10 miles to the gallon after clocking 165,000 miles.

The Scapegoat

THOSE famine-fearing scientists, who foresee the path as one desolate dust-bowl of soil erosion, are not stopped, are turning their hate on the goat. Because it eats all vegetation, exposing the land to the soil-skinning action of wind and rain, they rate the goat as a chief cause of fertility-loss in the Mediterranean and Middle East.

"The once fertile hills of Judea, now stripped of vegetation and soil, afford a classic example of the desolation the goat can leave behind," says G. V. Jakes, of the Rothamsted (Herts.) soil science bureau.

But he sees little hope of talking the goat-dependent peasants into tethering their animals and carrying food to them.

Sub-Atomic

I HEAR that the atomic engine the US Navy is designing as a prototype for driving submarines will cost about 20 million dollars. Using specially refined uranium fuel it will develop about 80,000 h.p. Without recharging it could drive a submerged submarine for thousands of miles.

The designers are hoping to replace much of the heavy death-ray absorbing shielding which has to be built round land-based atomic engines, by the sea-water normally carried in a submarine's ballast tanks.

"Selfish Nationalism" Blamed For Crisis DALTON ATTACKS CHURCHILL IN STRASBOURG SPEECH

Strasbourg, Aug. 23. — Delegates to the European Assembly — striving for unity among the 12 member nations — today criticised selfish national policies as a root cause of the grave economic crisis.

Appealing for swifter action, M. Paul Reynaud, former French Finance Minister and an international authority, said, "Everyone agrees that between the two giants we must have a Europe, but it must not be a fragmented Europe. We must realise how great is the need in every one of our countries for a European market with a single currency."

The Organisation for European Economic Co-operation had failed because "the OEEC representatives are the advocates of their own countries," he added.

Greater Austerity For Japs?

Voorhees On Way To See MacArthur

Washington, Aug. 23. — The Under-secretary of the Army, Mr. Tracy Voorhees, left today for Tokyo for a conference with General MacArthur which may result in even more stringent austerity measures for Japan.

Mr. Voorhees and General MacArthur are expected to discuss the government's Communist threat in Asia and the measures necessary to meet the Red menace in Japan.

The Under-secretary was accompanied by Dr. Ralph Reid, economic and political consultant on occupied areas. His selection of Dr. Reid to accompany him is regarded as being particularly significant.

Dr. Reid was a member of the Dodge Mission to Tokyo which recommended stringent measures to bring the Japanese economy more nearly into balance. Among the nine points laid down by the Dodge group were those calling for a drastic reduction in government expenditures, the removal of many excess employees from the payrolls of government-controlled enterprises and other steps designed to work toward a balanced budget.

Dr. Reid is known to hold strong views on the necessity for Japanese austerity.

Mr. Voorhees will be able to give General MacArthur an up-to-date picture of the Congressional economy drive, which is considered certain to result in reduced funds for Japan during this fiscal year.

He is presumably also up-to-date on the Joint Chiefs of Staff's desire for measures to construct a security zone around Communism in China.—United Press.

ANGLO-US TEACHER EXCHANGE

Washington, Aug. 23. — President Truman today expressed the hope that the exchange of school teachers between the United Kingdom and the United States would eliminate any "chance for any misunderstanding or falling out."

Mr. Truman spoke briefly to a group of teachers—97 from the United Kingdom and two from France—who will exchange positions for one year with American teachers in 55 cities in 35 States.

The President said he hoped the British teachers would reach a better understanding of "our shortcomings and our idiosyncrasies, which are sometimes not understandable when not well understood."

"I am hopeful you will carry back to your respective countries a good opinion of this country and that when our people come back there will be complete understanding between us and no chance for any misunderstanding or falling out."—United Press.

US Envoy Takes Own Coca-Cola

La Havre, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Porto Mesta, new American Minister to Luxembourg, arrived in Europe today with 100 cases of Coca-Cola and said she would entertain in her new job only "in a very small way."

Mrs. Mesta also brought with her on the liner America a shiny American car, gramophone and 100 of the latest popular records, and 18 assorted pieces of baggage.—United Press.

Burma Keeping "Vigilant Watch" On War In China

PLAN PREPARED TO MEET RED ATTACK

Karachi, Aug. 23.—General No Win, deputy premier and commander-in-chief of Burma, who is on a short visit to Pakistan, said today that his government was keeping a vigilant watch on military developments in China.

Burma had already decided what steps she would take if she was attacked by Communists from the north or north-east.

Asked whether Burma intended to seek aid—military or otherwise—from the United Kingdom or America, in view of the growing Communist menace in South-east Asia, Gen. No Win said "It is not for Burma but for the Western powers to do something or talk of giving aid to us."

"After all they are aware of the Communist influence in South-east Asian countries, and also know what a detriment it is to allow Communism to spread without any check."

"If given in good faith, Burma would welcome all kinds of aid from the Western powers."

If we fight Communism it would benefit both us and them."

The General said that the number of Communists was likely to grow if not checked in time.

He strongly opposed regional pacts such as the Western Union of Europe, and the Atlantic pact. These pacts went against the United Nations spirit, and the way in which they had been made was bound to lead to a third world war.

The General did not favour the formation of a South Pacific union.

He emphatically denied joining the Commonwealth, even at the risk of turning the whole of Burma Communist.—Associated Press.

aid from the United States and the need of time for reorganizing our armed forces after our setback around Hsuehwei, they had no objection to this policy of delaying the Communist offensive.

SOVIET PRICE RAISED
"I then proceeded to take the matter up with the Soviet Ambassador. With the repeated military success of the Chinese Communists, the Soviet price had been raised. He would not be satisfied with a treaty of neutrality. He insisted on the establishment of basis of real co-operation between China and Russia."

Dr. Kan said he informed the Soviet Ambassador that China could not give up "her traditional friendship with the United States," at which point the Russians informed him that further negotiations were impossible unless the Nationalists ended the friendship with the United States.

Dr. Kan said: "It was at this point that the Acting President, Li Tsung-jen, sent me to the Ambassador to ask for a statement of support to strengthen our hand in the negotiations with a view to obtaining Russian instruction to the Chinese Communists to come to a reasonable settlement. At no time did Acting President Li agree to the proposed establishment of a basis of real co-operation between China and Russia for the elimination of American influence to as great an extent as possible in China."—United Press.

ACHESON'S DENIAL
Washington, Aug. 23.—The Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Acheson, today denied charges that the Department suppressed parts of the Wedemeyer report on China.

In a letter to Senator Theodore Green, Mr. Acheson said all the Wedemeyer report passages on China were printed in full in the Department's recent White Paper.

Senator Green had written to Mr. Acheson asking for his views on the charges of "alleged distortions and omissions" in the White Paper. Mr. Acheson said the only passages which were deleted in the Wedemeyer report were those dealing with Korea, and "since the White Paper dealt with China rather than Korea, this deletion was obviously justified."—United Press.

COUNTY CRICKET

MIDDLESEX LOSES TO SURREY

Close Finish Certain For Championship

London, Aug. 23.—After one of the most exciting matches seen at Lord's here for many seasons, Surrey gained a splendid victory by 52 runs over Middlesex, who received a check in their bid for the County Championship.

The position at the head of the table is now intriguing with three teams—Middlesex, Surrey and Yorkshire, who today beat Kent—each possessing a chance to win the title outright, while Worcestershire can draw level at the top. In fact there is a distinct possibility of the Championship being shared for the first time in 60 years.

The position of the leading sides is as follows: Middlesex, played 25, 180 points, possible points 192, remaining match against Derbyshire;

Yorkshire, played 24, 168 points, possible points 192, remaining matches against Gloucestershire and Glamorgan;

Surrey, played 23, 152 points, possible points 188, remaining matches against Warwickshire, Worcestershire and Sussex;

Worcestershire, played 24, 156 points, possible points 180, remaining matches against Northamptonshire and Surrey.

At Lord's, the England fast-medium bowler, mostly brought about the fall of Middlesex by taking eight second innings wickets for 42 runs in 16 overs. Set 147 for victory the present leaders were dismissed in 105 minutes for 94.

Rain prevented any play before lunch. On resumption it was not long before the pitch afforded bowlers help and Surrey lost their last five wickets for 22 runs. In devastating spells Young and Warr each claimed three wickets for eight runs apiece.

MIDDLESEX COLLAPSE
Middlesex in turn were quickly in a state of collapse, with Brown, Edrich, Denis Compton and Davies out for a mere 23. Redser was at the top of his form on the damaged pitch and frequently his opponent's senses by knowing where to find the ball.

Rain held up Yorkshire for more than an hour, but they beat Kent with 54 minutes to spare, thanks to some fine left arm slow bowling by Wardle, who took ten wickets in the match for 150 runs.

Rain prevented further play after lunch at Worcester after the home County had dismissed the remaining Leicestershire batsmen for the addition of 47 runs to their overnight score, but Worcestershire had already been headed on the first innings.

Somerset continued, their much improved form, which has now brought them 52 points out of a possible 60 in their last five matches. They proved far too strong for an Essex side handicapped by injuries.

Sussex by excellent all round play gained a fine innings victory over the champions, Glamorgan. Cornford, Sussex fast medium bowler, combined pace and accuracy to take seven wickets for 30.

Northamptonshire wound up their last home match of the

Kiwis Just Beat The Clock

Liverpool, Aug. 23.—Set to score 153 runs in 75 minutes here today to beat Lancashire, the New Zealand cricketers accomplished the feat with seven minutes to spare and won by nine wickets.

The declaration by the Lancashire captain produced a memorable finish to a game which had seemed doomed to a stalemate, for Sutcliffe and Donnelly hit 120 runs in 53 minutes before the first wicket fell.

The first 50 came in 20 minutes and the 100 in 43 minutes. Just afterwards both men completed their individual half centuries.

Donnelly was stumped, but Reid came in and helped Sutcliffe to maintain the rapid scoring rate until the final run was hit off.

Superbly confident, Sutcliffe hit eight fours in his 79 not out, one fewer than Donnelly registered in his 56.

The pitch, though dusty, remained firm and full of runs. Lancashire wiped off their first innings arrears of 72 without loss. Washbrook and Ikin scoring 115 in two hours for the first wicket.

Three members of the side passed 50 before the declaration was made. Washbrook hit two sixes and six fours in his 68, which occupied two hours.

Tabone bowled with great steadiness in spite of the oppressive heat for he was at one end unchanged for two and a half hours, and claimed the wickets of Washbrook, Ikin and Place.

Place and Edrich added 61 for the third wicket before Place was beaten by the spin of a Rabone delivery, which he stepped out to drive. Rabone had bowled unchanged for 80 minutes before lunch and he continued for an hour after the interval.

BRILLIANT CATCH
At 210, Sutcliffe took a brilliant catch low down on the deep square leg boundary to dismiss Wharton and when Edrich's innings came to an end for 3 the innings was declared closed at 224 for five.

This left New Zealand a maximum of 75 minutes to score 153 if they were to win. It was soon obvious that New Zealand were going for the American Sport Wants More Japanese

Tokyo, Aug. 22.—Shintaro Isaka, councillor of the Japan Table Tennis Association, said today he has received an invitation from the American Table Tennis Association to send two or three Japanese players to participate in the American championships scheduled to take place next year.

Isaka said he was happy to receive the invitation and that a formal reply will be sent after the invitation has been discussed at a meeting of officials of the Japanese association.

He said in the event a visit materialised the association hopes to send Japan's No. 1 ping-pong player, Norikazu Fujii, and girl player Miss Chiyoko Matsumoto of Kyoto.

The Japanese Federation was re-admitted to the International Ping-pong Federation last February, a Reuter message adds.

VOLLEYBALL

Meanwhile, the Japan Volleyball Association revealed yesterday that it had sent to the United States an application for admission into the International Volleyball Federation. Association officials said they had received an assurance of support from American volleyball officials.

Czech Tennis Stars Leave For New York

London, Aug. 23.—Jaroslav Drobný and Vladimir Cernik, the Czech lawn tennis stars, who recently went into voluntary exile, leave today for New York tonight.

Drobný said: "I do not want to turn professional yet. I have had no offers. What I want to do is to settle in Australia. If I can get a visa I shall be going there after two or three months."

In America, a friend in America is looking after our expenses."

Drobný, Wimbledon finalist this year, and Cernik have not heard of their relatives since they left Prague. —Reuter.

BOXING

HMS JAMAICA BEATS LEICESTERS

The Services boxing season opened last night at the China Fleet Club when the Jamaica met the Royal Leicesters before a packed house.

Jamaica boxers fought their way through thrilling bouts to a final victory of 12 points to the Leicesters' nine.

If the fighting is any indication of what can be expected during the season Hongkong can be assured of some fine exhibitions.

A highlight bout of the evening was the bantamweight contest between Stoker Mechanic Ed. Warner and Pte Trevor Busby. Warner is an inter-services champion of England and last year was first ABA reserve against Denmark. Busby won 1947 A.B.A. bantamweight champion.

Warner, a slight boy, is probably the fastest boxer seen in the Colony for many years. He had some very tough opposition in Busby but showed that he was a far better exponent of ring-craft than his niggly opponent.

Warner's cleverness in slipping and countering brought gasps from the crowd and won him a narrow decision.

Lightweight Stoker "Jack" Crawford knocked down Sgt Bob Westbrook once in the first round and twice in the second and punched his way to a sensational points win.

Westbrook, whose reach and height appeared to give him the advantage, could not cope with little Crawford's body-in tactics.

Crawford floored Westbrook briefly with a right to the jaw in the second half of the first round, but Westbrook recovered and went in fighting.

The opening of the second round saw Crawford getting in to close quarters, and after a rapid exchange of blows he put Westbrook down again with a left cross.

Up in a moment, Westbrook continued his quick left jab but Crawford caught him with a heavy right which sent him down again.

This round was the most sensational of the night. Jamaica idol welter Marine Lobb struck heavy weather in the last bout of the night. He fought Pte W. Wager, and what the crowd would be a walk-over for Lobb turned out to be a hard slugging match which he won only narrowly.

THE RESULTS
Here are the full results: Boys Lightweight—Boy Fraser beat Boy Shepherd. Shepherd retired through injury in the second round.

Lightweight—Pte Williams beat Pte Williams. Boy Campbell beat Boy Boydland.

Welterweight—Cpr. Charlton beat Cpr. Charlton. Boy McEneaney beat Boy McEneaney.

Featherweight—A.B. Stewart beat Pte Sheldon.

Featherweight—Pte Bruce beat Pte Bruce. Welterweight—Cpl. Slater beat Cpl. Slater.

Lightweight—Sto Crawford beat Sto Crawford. Bantamweight—Sto Warner beat Sto Warner.

Middleweight—Sto Washington beat Sto Washington. Welterweight—Mae Lobb beat Pte Wager.

Don't Overdo Your Hand Exercises

Ben Hogan Explains His Grip

In folding the left hand around the club the thumb of my left hand is slightly on the right side of the shaft.

Looking down on my left hand I can easily see the first three hand-knuckle joints. Also note that my left hand is well over the shaft. The V formed between the index finger and the thumb points approximately over my right shoulder.

The club lies diagonally across the fingers of my right hand below the callus pad. Take note of where the butt of my right hand is in relation to the left hand before it is folded over.

In folding the left hand around the club the left thumb will be slightly on the right side of the shaft. As you look down on your left hand in gripping the club you should be able to see the first three finger

My right hand rides very high on the left hand in my grip. The purpose in doing this is to mold the hands together so they act as one unit. The greatest pressure in my right hand is in the middle two fingers.

This view of my grip with the knuckles showing reveals the position of each finger in relation to each other. It is an excellent illustration of how I wrap the little finger of my right hand across the index finger of my left hand and around the knuckle.

This is a grip alignment of my own. Used in a "Power Grip" it makes for a firmer grip at all times during the swing and as a result I can "propel" the club much faster while still having maximum use of my wrists.

Special exercises for the hands are good, but don't overdo them. Don't make the mistake a well-known professional did while on his way to the 1937 National Open Championship at Cherry Hills in Denver, Colorado. Travelling by train, he decided that he would keep his hands in shape during the train ride by special exercise and so he bought a hard rubber ball.

All of the way out to Colorado he kept working with that ball, squeezing it and then relaxing his grip. He repeated the process over and over again. But when the morning of the first round of the tournament arrived he couldn't control a shot. He had lost that sense of "feel" in his hands which is essential to tournament golf. That was a mighty expensive experiment in special exercises for that particular professional.

As I favour my own version of the overlapping grip, naturally that's the one I am going to talk about in this book. Starting with the left hand, my grip is very definitely a palm grip. The leather or rubber grip on the shaft of your club will lie diagonally across the palm of the left hand just above the callus pad.

This is a grip alignment of my own. Used in a "Power Grip" it makes for a firmer grip at all times during the swing and as a result I can "propel" the club much faster while still having maximum use of my wrists.

In connection with any discussion of the grip one question that I am frequently asked is, "Do you exercise your hands?" The answer is that I do, but not as much as when I wasn't able to play as much as I am playing right now. The condition of your hands is very important and if you don't get a chance to play often it is a good idea to exercise your hands and keep them in condition.

Your hands must be strong and yet at the same time sensitive to the demands put on them. They must be strong and at the same time have a delicate touch because there are shots in golf which require the finesse and touch of a master billiard player if you are going to pull them off when they will mean the most to you.

Personally, I like my hands to be thin. When they feel a little fat and puffy I can't grip the club the way I like to. I can't explain why, but some mornings my hands will feel fat and puffy. When they feel that way I know that I am not going to play my best that day. Which should give you an idea of the relation of the condition of your hands to successful golf.

To exercise my hands I take a towel and squeeze it with both hands until my forearms are good and hard. However, I don't exercise my hands unless I have been forced to lay off golf. Most of the time I play enough to keep my hands fit without exercising them. Nor do I find it necessary to wear a glove while playing.

In gripping with the left hand there is definitely more pressure on the last three fingers of that hand than there is on the index finger and thumb. While gripping with these three fingers you should also push down on the top of the leather or rubber grip of your club with the butt of your hand. This will assure you of a firm grip. Try it and you will get the sensation of having the club locked in that hand.

As for the right hand, is concerned my grip is definitely a finger grip. By that I mean that the club lies diagonally across the fingers of the right hand below the callus pad. When you fold the right hand over the grip on the shaft you will find that if you have gripped the club correctly there is a cup formed in the palm of the hand that will allow space enough for the left thumb.

The thumb of the right hand is slightly on the left side of the shaft and not on the top. Make sure that the right hand rides high on the left hand. The purpose of this, of course, is to mold the two hands together so that they can act as one unit and that the greatest pressure in the right hand is in the two middle fingers. That is because the club is well down in the fingers of the right hand with a lot of hand left over.

DON'T OVERDO THEM
Special exercises for the hands are good, but don't overdo them. Don't make the mistake a well-known professional did while on his way to the 1937 National Open Championship at Cherry Hills in Denver, Colorado. This view of my grip with the knuckles showing reveals the position of each finger in relation to each other. It is an excellent illustration of how I wrap the little finger of my right hand across the index finger of my left hand and around the knuckle.

This is a grip alignment of my own. Used in a "Power Grip" it makes for a firmer grip at all times during the swing and as a result I can "propel" the club much faster while still having maximum use of my wrists.

Special exercises for the hands are good, but don't overdo them. Don't make the mistake a well-known professional did while on his way to the 1937 National Open Championship at Cherry Hills in Denver, Colorado. Travelling by train, he decided that he would keep his hands in shape during the train ride by special exercise and so he bought a hard rubber ball.

All of the way out to Colorado he kept working with that ball, squeezing it and then relaxing his grip. He repeated the process over and over again. But when the morning of the first round of the tournament arrived he couldn't control a shot. He had lost that sense of "feel" in his hands which is essential to tournament golf. That was a mighty expensive experiment in special exercises for that particular professional.

As I favour my own version of the overlapping grip, naturally that's the one I am going to talk about in this book. Starting with the left hand, my grip is very definitely a palm grip. The leather or rubber grip on the shaft of your club will lie diagonally across the palm of the left hand just above the callus pad.

In folding the left hand around the club the left thumb will be slightly on the right side of the shaft. As you look down on your left hand in gripping the club you should be able to see the first three finger

The club lies diagonally across the fingers of my right hand below the callus pad. Take note of where the butt of my right hand is in relation to the left hand before it is folded over.

My right hand rides very high on the left hand in my grip. The purpose in doing this is to mold the hands together so they act as one unit. The greatest pressure in my right hand is in the middle two fingers.

MCKENNEY ON BRIDGE

Cagey Play Makes This Doubled Bid

BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

MANY old bridge players will recall playing "Twenty Questions" at the home of the late P. Hal Sims in Deal, N.J., years ago. I was interested in learning how the Van Deventer family got started on "Twenty Questions" and built it up to the largest chain radio programme in the country.

It is heard on 425 stations across the nation every Saturday night, except on the Pacific Coast, where it is broadcast on Sunday nights. Although the family developed "Twenty Questions," Fred has never given up his newscasting. He still broadcasts news daily over a New York station.

After moving from Detroit to New York, the Van Deventer ter family often discussed the possibilities of a quiz programme.

I asked Van Deventer if there was any luck in coming up with the right answer on "Twenty Questions." He said, "Certainly, just the same as there is in bridge. I think I was pretty lucky to make six clubs on today's hand, but of course, the rest of the family helped out."

Van Deventer won the opening lead of the jack of clubs with the queen and then led a heart. North jumped in with the ace and immediately tried to set the contract by cashing the ace of diamonds, but Van Deventer trumped this. He cashed two more clubs and led a heart, which he won with the queen in dummy. He now led the queen of diamonds, which South did not cover, so he discarded a spade. He now proceeded to cash the jack and the ten of diamonds, upon which he discarded his losing spades, thus making six clubs.

The Animal's Merry-Go-Round

—You Could Only Ride On It At Night—

By MAX TRELL

CHRISTOPHER Cricket first brought the news to Knarf and Hanid, the Shadows with the turned-about names. And they couldn't believe it. It sounded too wonderful to be true.

So that night, after everyone in the house was fast asleep, Knarf and Hanid slipped out. "It's a merry-go-round," Christopher Cricket had told them. "Just wait till you see it!"

Then Christopher led them down the garden, across the fields, over the brook, and down to the edge of the marsh where the cattails grew. Then suddenly they heard music.

Playing Violins

They heard crickets playing violins. They heard frogs beating big-bass drums. They heard katydids blowing flutes. They heard dogs blowing trumpets and bugles. They heard mice playing flutes and butterflies playing harps. And then finally Knarf and Hanid saw the merry-go-round. It was a horse and sheep and goats were trotting round and round, holding on to each other's tails. And sitting on their backs were (as Knarf and Hanid quickly saw) two cats in velvet gowns and big straw bonnets.

Rupert's Queer Path—21

The two pals knelt at the edge of the path and gazed at Bill's shoes. "That must be the special magic of that slab," says Rupert. "Whoever reads on it gets stuck there. We'll never get those shoes back until they're returned. This is awful. I'd never have let her make this a real crazy path. I'd known what he meant," Bill groans. "I'm going to finish my game." "No," cries Rupert. "You mustn't go another step on this path without your shoes."

EXCITING ADVENTURES IN CENTRAL ASIA

EASTERN APPROACHES, by Fitzroy Maclean. (Jonathan Cape, 15s.) Brigadier Maclean, MP, adventurer, soldier and diplomatist, has now for the first time recounted his experiences in a book which, while throwing an authoritative light upon certain little known aspects of recent history, is an exciting adventure story describing his travels in Central Asia and the Caucasus before the war, his experiences in the Special Air Service Regiment and in German-occupied Yugoslavia, where he commanded the British Military Mission to the partisans.

FAX BRITANNICA by F. A. Volz (Constable, 25s.) A sequel to "Unto Caesar," which was first published in 1938. It is an attempt to reaffirm principles of British policy as conducted by the great masters of statecraft. It is at the same time an attack on all "ideologies" and, in particular, on "ideological war." The book contains brief character sketches of Bismarck, Pilsudski, General Mikoyan, Marshal Tito, Mr. Churchill and the late King George of Greece.

ESSAYS ON GOETHE

(Casell, 16s.) The essays forming this symposium have been written to commemorate the bicentenary of Goethe's birth. Under the editorship of an eminent German scholar, eight well-known authorities on their subject express their views, appreciations and comments on various aspects of the poet's life and work.

I SMELL THE DEVIL, by Carey Maeson (Casell, 3/6). Adelaide Stone, medieval scholar, believes she smells the devil one afternoon as she is working on a volume from the rare Egyptian collection at Cowan College, Michigan. As she reads, she stumbles upon a hitherto undiscovered passage describing the hiding place of the vast treasure of Dido, Queen of Carthage. Suddenly a mysterious hand appears at her window. That night a devilish voice terrifies her and the next morning the librarian in charge of the rare book room is found stabbed in the back.

By John Brophy (Coltish, 10/6). Set in Palestine during the last post-war period, the British Mandate, its major theme is the effect upon people living today of what was said and done nearly 2,000 years ago by a young Jew from Nazareth. (Tomorrow—Recorded Music)

YOUR BIRTHDAY

By STELLA

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 24

BORN this first day of the new sign, Virgo, you are ruled by Mercury, God of Knowledge and although highly critical, you have the ability to be helpful to others in a practical fashion. Being born on the cusp—you and all those born within the next few days—will be influenced by the outgoing sign, Leo, and clearly show some of its tendencies.

This combination can be an unusually strong one if you use all your talents effectively. You will either be an exceptional success or a miserable failure. If you fail, at first, to reach your goal, pick up the pieces and start off in some other direction. The elements of success are within your grasp. If only you can figure out how to use them!

You are, at times, rather too submissive and will give up a fight rather than battle. You try to get things through strategy rather than by an open combat.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 25

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 22)—Advertising and publicity are definitely a help to your profession right now. Make good progress.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)—Personal energy and ambition is what counts right now. Profits come in proportion to your own efforts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Good news can bring you happiness. Make minor profits now if you are astute and work things out properly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Things should move auspiciously at home and at work. Deal with the public to get the best possible results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Get moving today! You can stimulate business if you are alert and active. Grasp all opportunities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Some wish may be fulfilled today. Your relations with both your own and the opposite sex are favourable.

And they also went home.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

By STELLA

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 24

Sometimes the latter is necessary. This, you must learn early in life. You have a fine speaking voice and would make a good public speaker. You probably can write well, also, and since you are undoubtedly well interested in all the important questions of the day, you can do a great deal to further their progress by your pen and public speaking. You might find teaching a rewarding career.

Your marriage should be an exceptionally fine one, for you have the gift of making those you love very happy. If you select someone who has similar cultural and intellectual tastes, you will be able to work together harmoniously.

To find what the stars have in store for tomorrow, select your birthday star and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 25

FISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21)—A short journey can be profitable. If plans have been postponed recently, you can activate them now.

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20)—New enterprises are favoured, but be diplomatic when it comes to dealing with the opposite sex.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21)—Favourable for love and romance. Marriage should bring exceptional happiness. Business results are dubious.

GEMINI (May 22-June 22)—If job-hunting, you should be able to find what you want to do. Be ambitious—go out after it.

CANCER (June 23-July 23)—High volume sales should augment your income if you are in merchandising. Be alert and progressive.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Be careful in all plans for expansion calling for increased expenditures. Otherwise business is good.

New Zealand To Try To Save Dollars

Wellington, Aug. 23.—New Zealand cannot save dollars by diverting food-stuffs from Britain to dollar markets but will try to increase dollar earnings from wool, hides, tallow, and skins, the Minister of Supply, Mr. Arnold Nordmeyer, told the House of Representatives today.

He said that New Zealand must rely less on Britain to find dollars for her imports, and if a dollar loan was contemplated it should be spent on capital equipment and not consumer goods.

A high United States official said today that the Export-Import Bank had the impression that Mr. Havenga might want to see what hope South Africa had of raising a loan from one of the New York banks before resuming negotiations in Washington.

This official said that at his first meeting with Bank officials after his arrival Mr. Havenga did not have ready his "shopping list," the list of commodities South Africa would buy with any loan granted.

Mr. Havenga apparently found it difficult to understand why, as Canada had received a loan of $300,000,000 without any strings attached, South Africa could not enjoy the same treatment from the Bank.

Sterling Area Exchange Leak Sealed

London, Aug. 23.—A move to seal off one more foreign exchange leak in the sterling area was made by the Treasury today, when it added to the list of "prescribed" securities all those on which capital, dividends or interest are payable, or optionally payable, in Belgian, Congolese or Luxembourg francs.

This means that these securities can only be bought on the London Stock Exchange either by residents in Britain or by someone who can pay in Belgian francs through a Belgian sterling account.

Previously, it was possible to sell them to anyone with a sterling account of any kind. It is believed here that foreigners have been buying these securities with sterling, though below the official exchange rate.

Now that people other than residents in Britain can only pay for these securities through a Belgian sterling account, settlement will have to be made at the official exchange rate.—Reuter.

South African Finance Minister To See Snyder

EXPECTED TO DISCUSS GOLD PRICE REVISION

Washington, Aug. 23.—The South African Finance Minister, Mr. Nicolas Havenga, is to see the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. John Snyder, on Thursday.

A reliable source said that he is expected to discuss the possibility of revising the gold price and to make reference to the tripartite conference of the United States, Britain and Canada on dollar problems.

RUBBER MARKET DECLINE

New York, Aug. 23.—Rubber futures today opened steady and closed heavy, giving around finally with the reversal in securities and other commodities, plus the overnight subsidence of factory interest in physical rubber.

The setback is also believed to be a natural sequence after the previous two-day rise.

Dealers reported that big factories had withdrawn from the spot market following large-scale purchases on Monday.

Shipment dealers reported some pressure on afloat supplies routed here on consignment.

A cross section of opinion indicates that dealers believe that the market is striving to go higher, but overhanging fears of de

NEW FIRES SAID SPRINGING UP IN BORDEAUX AREA

Paris, Aug. 23.—Rain clouds broke over flame-swept forest lands southwest of Bordeaux today, bringing hope to weary, smoke-blackened firefighters of the end of their three-day battle against the disastrous runaway blaze.

But new fires are said to be springing up after travelling unseen through the undergrowth, and the battle is expected to last several more days.

Von Manstein War Crimes Trial Opens

Hamburg, Aug. 23.—The British Court trying Field Marshal Fritz Erich Von Manstein on war crimes charges today rejected a defence submission that the Court was not competent to deal with the case.

Von Manstein faces a 17-charge indictment, and defence counsel had argued that he was entitled as a prisoner of war to trial by court martial.

Both the prosecuting and defending counsel agreed that it was the first time a British court had been asked to decide on the validity of the Royal Warrant governing war crimes trials.

Defending, Mr. Reginald Paget, King's Counsel and Labour Member of Parliament, claimed that the Royal Warrant denied Manstein the protection of the laws of evidence, confronting him with documents he had never seen and testimony taken behind his back.

"If such things happened in a criminal court in England, the High Court would quash the proceedings as a gross miscarriage of justice," he said.

LOST STATUS

"After four years," Mr. Paget continued, "there is not a shred of justification for denying Manstein what you would give to the meanest sneak thief."

The Prosecutor, Sir Arthur Comyns Carr, submitted that the 61-year-old commander had lost his status as a prisoner of war, having been brought back to Germany in August 1943, and discharged from the Wehrmacht. Manstein, the 38th and last German to come before a British War Crimes Court, is charged with killing Russian prisoners and Poles, murdering soldiers and civilians by starvation and disease, systematically exterminating Jews and gypsies and devastating entire regions during "scorched earth" retreats.—Reuter.

Ex-Hagana Officer To Be Tried

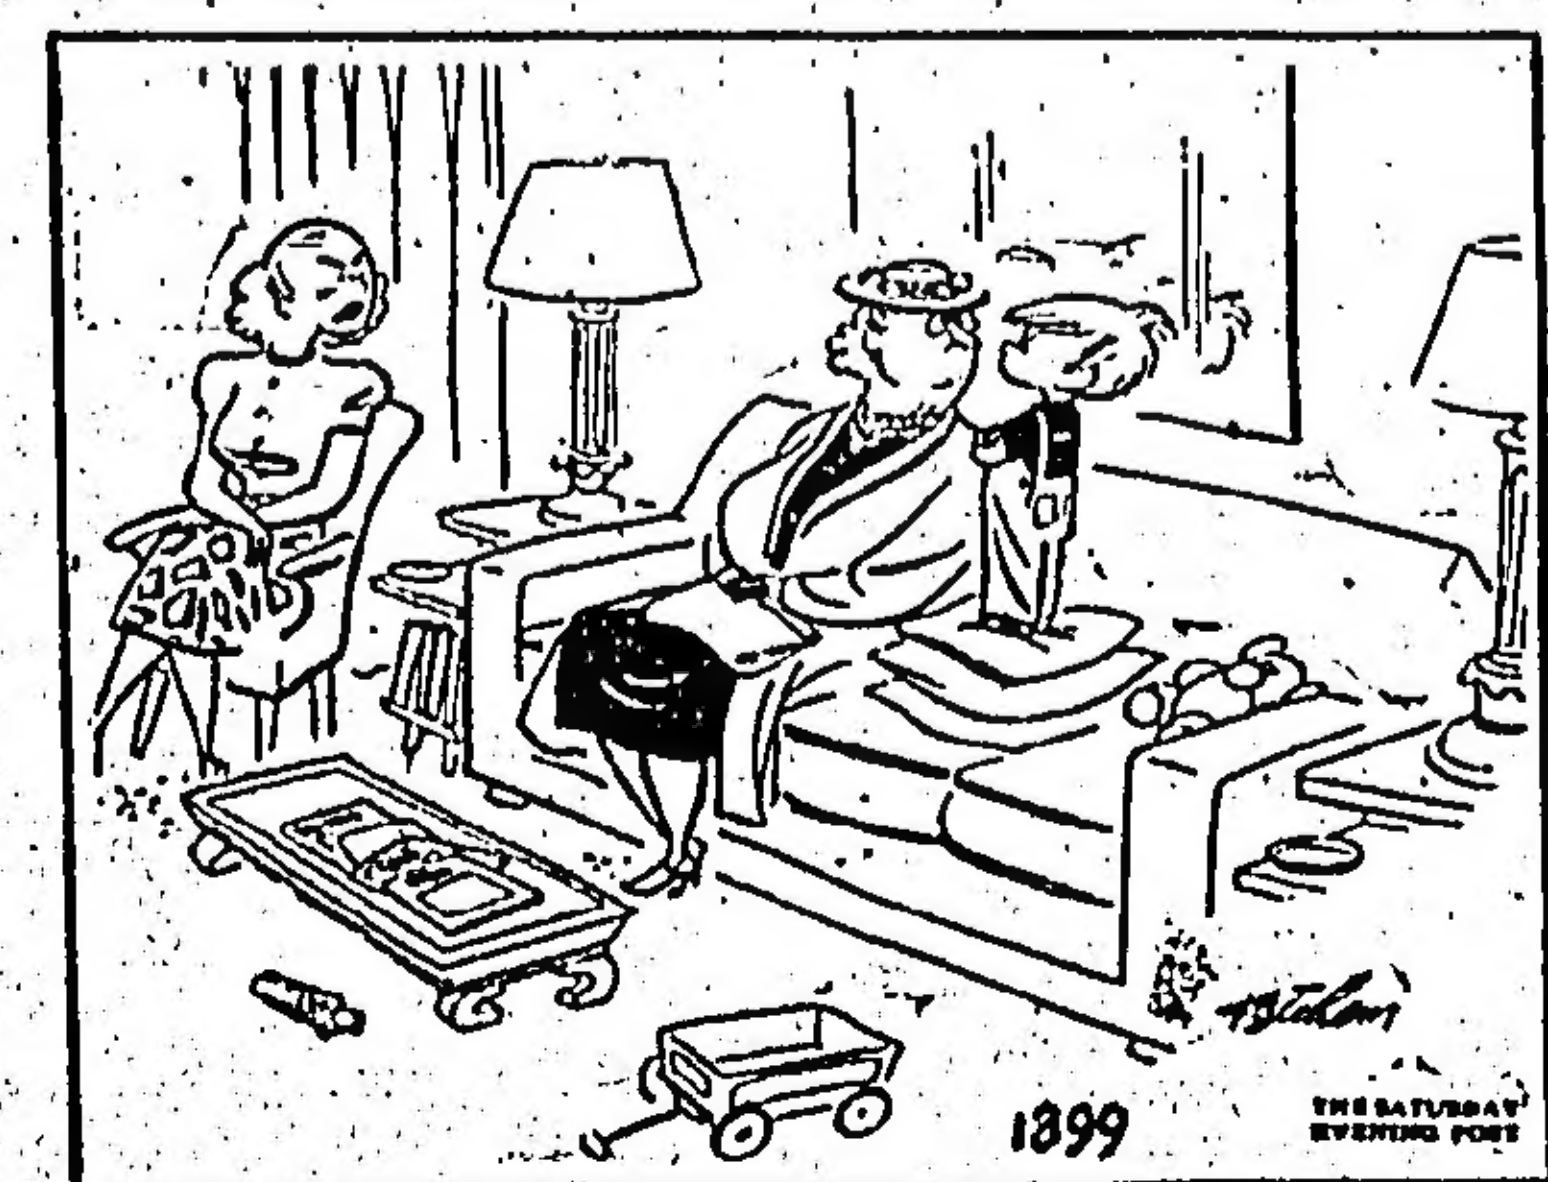

Tel-Aviv, Aug. 23.—Lt-Col Isser Beeri, former intelligence chief of the Jewish defence force, Hagana, was today committed for trial before a District Court on a manslaughter charge.

An examining magistrate at Rehovot today found that there was a case to answer on a charge of the manslaughter of Captain Meir Tobianski, executed by a firing squad on June 30, 1948, after conviction of treason by summary court martial.

Colonel Beeri was one of the members of this court martial, which sentenced Tobianski for alleged espionage during the shelling of Jewish Jerusalem in May-June, 1948.

After months of investigation, the Israeli Prime Minister, Mr. David Ben-Gurion, declared the court martial judgment "erroneous" and a "deplorable miscarriage of justice."

Two months ago Tobianski was posthumously promoted to major and re-interred with military honours.—Reuter.

Belgrade, Aug. 23.—Yugoslavia told Russia in an official note today that it was "under no condition willing to allow anyone whatsoever to interfere in her internal affairs."

ORIENTAL STUDENTS Ministered To By Communists

Liverpool, Aug. 23.—The Bishop of Liverpool said today that Negro and Oriental students arriving in England are being met at the docks by Communist glad-handers.

As a result, the Bishop said, many of them are "well on the way to becoming Communist missionaries," when they start home to Africa, India and China.

The Bishop, Dr. Clifford A. Martin, declared:

"They might return as missionaries of the Christian way of life if church people in dock cities served the cause of Christ with the same vision and devotion as the Communists serve their cause."

The Bishop made his observations in the September issue of his diocesan leader.

He said a Communist agent meets the lonely visitors as they come off the ship, "takes them home and gives them a friendly welcome and shelter when they are most alone."

It may be weeks or months before these young folk meet a Christian family, and when this does happen they are not always encouraged by the reception they receive," he added.—Associated Press.

Cheque For Maynooth

Dublin, Aug. 23.—A cheque for US$80,000 from Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York for the Maynooth Theological College restoration fund, was handed over today at Maynooth, County Kildare.

The cheque was given to Dr. John F. D'Alton, Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of All Ireland, by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor John Carrigan.

Since its foundation in 1705, Maynooth College has trained over 10,000 priests for dioceses in Ireland, America, China and Africa. Last March, Pope Pius sent a donation towards its extension.—Reuter.

First Hurricane Of Season

Miami, Florida, Aug. 23.—The first Atlantic hurricane of the season was expected to pass the Florida coast. The United States Weather Bureau said early today that the disturbance, with winds up to 100 miles an hour, was about 300 miles east of Melbourne, Florida.

The hurricane was moving in a northerly direction at about 13 miles an hour, but storm forecasters estimated that its forward movement would increase later today and tonight.—Reuter.

Replying to the Soviet note of August 18, which denounced Marshal Tito's Government as "Fascist lunatics" and warned that "more effective measures" would be taken unless alleged persecution of Soviet citizens stopped, Yugoslavia declared:

"The Yugoslav government does not intend to enter into an argument with the USSR about the character of the regime in Yugoslavia, about the real purpose of the Cominform or whether or not Yugoslav economy has become an appendage to the economies of capitalist countries."

RELEASING PRISONERS

The note said Yugoslavia would repatriate all Russians in Yugoslav custody as a sign of "good will." Yugoslavia promised to release imprisoned "White Guards" despite their "undeniable guilt."

"However, the government of the Federal People's Republic of Yugoslavia considers it its duty to emphasize that it is an independent sovereign state and that its peoples and its government are, under no condition, willing to allow anyone whatsoever to interfere in her internal affairs."

"Further, the Yugoslav Government also underlines that no pressure from outside has so far had any effect on her internal policy, nor will it have in future."

HARD PAST

The 400-word Yugoslav note was handed to correspondents by the Government press office late in the afternoon. It was restrained in contrast to what Yugoslavia has described as the "insulting, harsh and unfounded charges" in the Russian note.

The Government said it was "surprised" that the arrest of a "few White Guards" who are Soviet citizens, people with a hard past who have violated the laws and hospitality of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, could touch off "such an angry note"—United Press.

SAIGON GANG LED BY WOMAN

Saigon, Aug. 23.—A woman dressed in black and wearing a beret was the leader of a gang armed with daggers, bombs and revolvers who assassinated two Vietnamese civil servants in their home at Phun Huan, a Saigon suburb, on Sunday night, the police here stated today.

The victims were members of the Vietnamese information and postal services.

The bodies of four other Vietnamese citizens, with dagger wounds in their stomachs, were yesterday found lying outside the house of the murdered civil servants. The identities of the new victims were not disclosed.—Reuter.

Death Of Panama President

Panama City, Aug. 23.—Senor Domingo Diaz Arosemena, Liberal President of Panama since last August, died today in hospital.

He is being succeeded by Senor Chanis.—Reuter.

Polish Government Attitude Towards Church Stated

Warsaw, Aug. 23.—The Polish Government does not intend to interfere in the internal affairs of the Church in matters relating exclusively to doctrine and belief, the pro-Government Catholic daily, the Slowo Powszechnie, said today.

The newspaper, which is often a medium for inspired comment on Catholic matters, was making the first disclosure of the exact nature of the negotiations being held in Poland between the Government and Church leaders.

Appealing to Poles to study the present deadlock between the Church and state in a patriotic and dispassionate manner, Slowo Powszechnie declared that the Polish Government recognized the fundamental schism between the Catholic and Communist philosophies.

"All conceptions of a national Catholic Church in Poland are only provocative nonsense," the newspaper said. It added: "But the Polish bishops cannot have relations with the Anglo-Saxon world, whether that should be in Washington, London or Rome."

The newspaper, which is often a medium for inspired comment on Catholic matters, was making the first disclosure of the exact nature of the negotiations being held in Poland between the Government and Church leaders.

The only principle which the Church must observe is that the Catholic Episcopate should regulate its behaviour according to modern Polish notions of state.

According to the Slowo Powszechnie, this means the Church and Government must not on only two matters:

1. The Church must not contribute to strengthening international policy opposing Poland's retention of her western frontiers with Germany.

2. The Church must not dampen the ardour of people for reconstruction or do anything to impede the material advancement of Poland.

The Slowo Powszechnie referred to the present negotiations as "decisive."

The Government, it said, was only acting to gain Catholic agreement on matters which

ABDULLAH AT ARMY SCHOOL

London, Aug. 23.—King Abdullah of Jordan is tonight the guest at dinner of the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Ernest Bevin, at his private residence in Carlton Gardens, London, the Foreign Office spokesman announced.

Diplomatic quarters here expected King Abdullah and Mr. Bevin to continue the private conversation which they had yesterday in the king's suite in his London Hotel. This is believed to cover irrigation and development plans for Jordan as well as the future of Arabs in Palestine, which King Abdullah is known to wish to incorporate into the territory of Jordan.

King Abdullah today visited the British Army school at Westminster, Wiltshire. Accompanied by Colonel Glubb Pasha, builder of the Arab Legion, the King watched infantry demonstrating their fitness to fight over difficult terrain.

Highlights of his visit came when the men went over the gruelling assault course.

GUESTS AT DINNER

At tonight's dinner, King Abdullah will be accompanied by his son, Prince Nair, by the Jordanian Cabinet Ministers at present in London and Zaidi and Major-General John Glubb Pasha, Commander of the Arab Legion.

Among the British guests invited were Mr. Hector McNell, Minister of State, Sir William Strang, Permanent Under-Secretary at the Foreign Office, Sir Alex. Kirkbride, British Minister to Jordan and Service chiefs, Field Marshal Sir William Slim, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, and Marshal of the Royal Air Force Lord Tudeh, Chief of the Air Staff.—Reuter.

Turkish Quake Death Roll

Ankara, Aug. 23.—The death toll in the East Anatolian earthquake has mounted to 437, according to the latest figures reported today by the semi-official Turkish news agency.

The number of persons gravely injured is 350. Houses completely destroyed number 1,569 and partially destroyed 1,304.

The earthquake struck the Erzurum region last Thursday.—Reuter.
